Fund Commentary – February 2025

After a strong start to 2025, February saw some of the shine come off the US exceptionalism story. Growing uncertainty about the impact of the US administration’s policy agenda weighed on both corporate and consumer sentiment, and concerns about growth started to re-emerge. Weak US performance dragged on developed market equities, which delivered a -0.7% total return over the month (in USD).

European equities outperformed the US in February to end the month as the top performing major equity index. The MSCI Europe ex-UK Index rose 3.4% as investors increasingly factored in the likelihood of a ceasefire in Ukraine. European financials maintained their strong run and were the top performing European sector with returns on equity that continue to outstrip their US counterparts. European defence stocks also benefitted from a renewed focus on domestic production, delivering returns of 9.3%.

The fund outperformed its benchmark by 2% over the month, to increase this to +4.06% since the start of 2025. The contributors to performance included many of our European holdings, but also US stocks in sectors such as staples, insurance and energy, areas which are attracting renewed interest as market leadership broadens. Key winners included: Coca Cola (+12%), Berkshire Hathaway (+9.6%), HSBC (+11.9%) and Rolls Royce (+24.4%). Detractors during February were Alphabet (-16%), Amazon (-10%) and United Health (-12%).

The latter stock was sold in full during the period, as was Microsoft as we further reduced our US tech weighting. Profits were taken in Berkshire and HSBC as their weightings had increased substantially after a period of strong returns. Four new holdings were added to the portfolio: Stryker (medical equipment/devices), KLA (chip design/inspection) and two collectives to give exposure to Japan (iShares Japan Value ETF and JP Morgan Japanese IT). We like the appealing valuations in many of the Japanese ‘value’ sectors, coinciding with rising bond yields and a gradually strengthening yen.

Our weighting to the US equity market is currently c. 58%, with 40% exposure to non-US developed markets (now including Japan). It has yet to be seen if Trumps tariffs will be implemented in full, or if they will succeed in making the USA ‘great again’, but currently both the bond and forex markets suggest the pain could be felt more acutely by their economy and may well serve to kick-start higher investment and spending in Europe, further supporting the strong start to the year from this region.

Additional factors to be considered when investing

The Fund is invested in a concentrated portfolio which comes with the risk of more volatile returns relative to the broader market.

Investors are reminded that an investment in a currency other than their own may expose them to a foreign exchange rate risk. Exchange rates may also have an independent, favourable or unfavourable impact on the value of the Fund. The Fund will invest in global equities and securities, which may expose the portfolio to specific country risks such as macroeconomic and political risks, foreign exchange risks, tax risks, settlement risks, potential limitations on the availability of market information as well as potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds.

The Fund seeks to mitigate these risks through only investing in very large global companies listed on the world's leading stock exchanges.
